Letter to the Editor

Today's editorial does a remarkable job of cherry-picking remarks from Tuesday night's Barangaroo Public Presentation at Angel Place.

Anyone interested in seeing for themselves the complete questions and comments in context can watch the entire webcast of the evening at www.barangaroo.com

For those who do take the time to engage in this debate you will know that both Paul Keating and several other speakers acknowledged the work of the winners of the 2006 "ideas and concepts" design competition and rightly confirmed that this work served as the basis for the current concept plan.

It is interesting that in other media forums, there is a range of reader opinions about the winning Barangaroo proposal, but not so in the Herald. Despite all of the reader comments published yesterday, there were no varying views and you certainly did not publish any of the letters that I sent recently.

Detailed information on Barangaroo is open for all at The Barangaroo Display on Wednesdays and Saturdays at Barangaroo in the Old Ports Building (47-51 Hickson Road, Millers Point).
