

Pier Pavilion: Site investigation works

A new iconic landmark is coming to Barangaroo South.

The NSW Government is delivering the new Pier Pavilion. This spectacular public pavilion will stand on the edge of Watermans Cove and be a new place where people can shelter, meet, gather and relax by the water, or enjoy a range of temporary, programmed events.

Stage 2: Upcoming works

Stephen Edwards Construction (SEC) will be conducting site investigation works in preparation for main works construction for the future Pier Pavilion at Watermans Cove.

These investigations are required to:

- Determine the levels of the structural slabs beneath the pier, so that we can begin fabricating structural steel for the pavilion.
- Confirm sewer connections between the wharf and shared services basement.

Site investigation works are planned to be completed on Wednesday 20 December 2023, between the hours of 7:00am – 5:00pm (weather pending). Respite hours will be between 12:00pm – 2:00pm.

What to expect

To facilitate site investigation works, an exclusion zone will be established via bollards. Clear signage will be positioned around the exclusion zone with adequate footpath clearance.

Investigators will drill approximately 18 holes at a depth of around 100mm into pavers, using a hand-held power drill. Noise will be minimal. Once all holes have been drilled and the cores assessed, the holes will be filled with sand and cement and pavers reinstated.
